THE JOURNEY

Munnar

“A mesmerising hill station in Idukki district, Munnar was the favored summer resort of the erstwhile British rulers in the colonial days.”

Famous For : City

Munnar is not just Kerala's most sought-after hill resort, it is also the centre of the state's tea growing district, aptly known as the High Range. In Tamil, moon aar literally means 'three rivers', a reference to the streams around whose confluence the town grew. The Nallathanni and Kundale streams flow into the Muthirapuzha River here. Tea is Munnar's claim to fame. More than 12,000 hectares of lush, manicured tea fields form an irresistible canvas against which honeymooners pose. Stately eucalyptus plantations, which fuel the many tea factories in the vicinity, sway gently in the wind, their fragrance wafting over Munnar. And shola trees hug the mist-shrouded hillsides, sheltering many endangered species of wildlife. For the more adventurous, there's the challenge of climbing the 8,841 ft Anaimudi, the highest peak in India south of the Himalaya, which towers majestically over the town. Munnar is situated at the confluence of three mountain streams - Mudrapuzha, Nallathanni and Kundala. The hill station in God's own country is known for its serenity and remarkable beauty. Set amidst thriving green tea plantations, exotic wildlife and clear trout streams, Munnar is a delight for adventure seekers. Hill View Park, Sita Devi Lake and Mattupetti Dam are some the major tourist attractions. Situated amidst forested hills and jungles, Atukkad Waterfall is another major attraction. The lush greenery surrounding the cascading waters creates a site to behold. A blue flower known as 'Strobilanthus' blooms once in two years and is only found in this region.

Munnar is in a valley hemmed in by hills. Many of its attractions are to be found on its outskirts, within a radius of 30 km from the town. All these places are part of the Munnar experience, and are linked to it by local bus, taxis and autos along a network of excellent roads. Contact DTPC for information and bookings, trekking, sightseeing, tickets for boating at Mattupetti Dam and cycles on hire.

Towards Mattupetty, Munnar, Kerala 685602, India

A point that is just popular for its scenic backgrounds and the picture perfect quality, Photo Point is quite literally 'THE' photo point of Munnar and surrounding areas. The tea gardens in the background and the big silver oak trees around the place make a perfect setting for a postcard you might want to send to your family in the holiday season.

The small rivulets and rolling hills are few of the other elements that are not to be missed while clicking the pictures. And you know what is the best part? The best part is that you don't have to even pose a lot for the pictures here; the sheer beauty of the place will make up for everything. A little unfair but true.

2 Attukal Waterfalls

Munnar - Udumalpet Road, Marayoor, Kerala 685620, India

Past the dense jungles of Munnar, enroute to Pallivasal, lies the cascading Attukal Waterfalls. The cascading plunge of the waterfalls can be seen from afar. As you get closer to the falls you can see the pearly white water streaming and flowing down, twisting, turning and shooting past, over and under massive smooth, glistening boulders as it makes its journey downstream.

You can approach the Attukal waterfalls through a narrow wooden bridge. Ice cold, the water gushes around in a steady cadence with mist rising and at times the entire region around the waterfall becomes foggy and translucent. The walk up to the waterfalls is a treat in itself. Towering hills wrapped in green and blooming with seasonal flowers fill the horizon as far as you can stretch your gaze. If the water level is low you can walk up to the rocks and splash around in the water. Serene and romantic, Attukal waterfalls is also an excellent site for a spot of trekking.

3 Kannan Devan Tea Museum

KDHP House, Munnar, Kerala, 685612, India

On a trip to Munnar? If you are, you cannot not visit the legacy of the grand tea planting district in Idukki's high ranges. Visit Kannan Devi Tea Museum, the first tea museum of the country displaying the growth of this century old tea plantations and industry, which began with a simple tea roller and has grown to the present day fully automated tea factory of Madupatty. The plantation has become one of the major attractions in Munnar. A visit to the Tea Museum is an insightful experience. Run by Kanan Devan Hills Plantations now (it's not a Tata Tea plantation anymore), the Tea Museum traces the evolution of the tea industry in Munnar from the 1880s. At the adjacent tea-processing unit, one is introduced to the stages of tea manufacture and the intricacies of tea tasting.

The memorabilia at the museum includes the roller from 1905 - taking you back in time. One of the museum's rooms offers views of the ancient bungalow furniture, magneto phone, cash safe, wooden bathtub, iron oven, etc. Another room houses

5 Kolukkumalai Tea Estate

📍 Bodinayakanur, Kottagudi, Munnar, Tamil Nadu 625582, India

Located at a distance of 35 kilometres from Munnar, Kolukkumalai Tea Estate is situated on the precipitous ridge above the scorching plains of Tamil Nadu. The highest reputed tea estate, it is around 8000 feet above the sea level. The estate is known for producing excellent flavorsome teas and is popular world over for the highest tea production. Tea factory was established in the middle of the estate more than 70 years back and it still uses traditional techniques, that serve as a draw for tea connoisseurs. The technique used is a seven step process which involves withering, rolling, sieving, fermenting, drying, fiber extraction and finally grading. The reputation of the estate can be gauged from the fact that in 2005, it won the Southern Tea Competition of the Golden Leaf India Awards. Apart from the excellent production, it is also known for alluring panoramic views of the rugged mountains combined with the rejuvenating fresh breeze. People here lead a simple life which generally revolves around their home and work.
